Poisonous Toy Balloons .- The sanitary inspector of Glasgow has found that the yellow toy balloons sold to children are poisonous. He says that the coloring matter consists of one part of chromate of lead and three parts of carbonate of lime. Children, being in the habit of applying their mouths to the orifine of these balloons for the purpose of filling Bloomfield Savings Institution, them with air, may readily receive a quantity of such poisonous powder into their mouths. Toy balloons, therefore, although admirably fitted for playthings Oct. 1st, 1875, will bear interest from at baby farms and other institutions of similar character, should be viewed with suspicion in every well-regulated nur-
